

Genre: A group or collection of writing with a similar theme or style.

Science Fiction: Generally, explores the question, “What if?”

It seeks to investigate moral, philosophical and technological possibilities by creating alternate and new realities.

Setting is outside of everyday reality either by time or place.

* Science Fiction and Fantasy are similar types of literary genres*

Fantasy: Characters or settings that could not exist in life, as we know it. Magic, imaginary creatures, and other worlds are typical characteristics of fantasy writing.